THE INSURGENTS AHEAD.

Spanish Troops Wholly Unable to Cope with Them.

ATTACKING INTERIOR TOWNS.

It Is Evident That the Plan of Campaign of the Cuban Patriots Is Not an Immediate Attack on the Strongly Guarded Capital. Refugees Fleeing to Havana.

HAVANA, Jan. 7.—Little news is received in this city regarding the movements of either the Spanish or Cuban forces, the lines of communication being cut in every direction out of Havana. Enough is reported from points in the provinces of Pinar del Rio, however, to show that the insurgent columns have covered a wide territory in that province and are unceasingly destroying the sugar cane and damaging the tobacco crop. At Cabañas, a seaport town of considerable importance on the northern coast, the insurgents have destroyed the lighthouse.

The destruction of Guira Melena seems to have been complete. Guira Melena is an important village of 4,000 inhabitants situated in a fertile district. The report from there said that the insurgents planned the church, the business houses, the stores and private residences, and then destroyed them entirely. They are also said to have killed the mayor and a prominent merchant of the place. Similar tales come from other towns in the route of the insurgents' march. Guira, a small village east of Guira Melena and west of Guines, was also burned.

The mayor of the village of San Felipe is said, was intent upon offering a vigorous resistance to the invasion of his town by the insurgents. The mayor's temerity caused much surprise to Maximino Gomez, and his forces set about to burn the village. The citizens went to the mayor with a request that he offer no resistance to Gomez, and thereupon, says the report, he desisted.

The zone included in the country about the villages of Quivican, Duran and San Felipe in the southern part of the province of Havana, has been swept clean by the destructive touch of the insurgents, and the plantations of Salvador, Julia, San Augustin, Santa Teresa, Mercedes, Mora and Miron have been burned.

Incoming trains from the south are bringing in vast throngs of refugees, men, women and children, some of whom have been burned out of house and home, but most of whom are simply fleeing from fear of violence, having hastily gathered together a few household goods. This large infusion of panic-stricken people into the city's population spreads a contagion of alarm, and the force and proximity of the insurrection becomes more real to the mind of Havana every hour.

Saturday night a torpedo was exploded in front of the Corona cigar manufactory in the city. No one was hurt, and the fire that resulted was extinguished without much damage, but the incident has a sinister look and is a tangible expression of a thing that even the most hopeful citizens fear, and that is an outbreak in the city of disaffected elements in case the insurgents should come within reach of an effort at co-operating in such an attempt.

Loud disclaimers are being uttered by the authorities here that they have any fear for the welfare of the city. It is pointed out that the city is well fortified, being protected by the strong fortress Morro, and being garrisoned by the Canhamas, Principe, Alares, Santa Clara and Reina troops, with heavy artillery, and by 20,000 volunteers, with 40,000 most loyal citizens in the city willing to take arms. With these forces at command the authorities express the opinion with great confidence that it would be impossible for the insurgents to capture the city unless they were provided with siege artillery.

It is claimed that only small bands of insurgents are engaged in the operations under Gomez, and that they are successful only in small towns. The opinion again holds here that the movement of the insurgents is directed against the country districts, and although preparations have been made here against a possible surprise, there is no present fear of an attack.

Counterfeiter Caught in the Act.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 7.—James W. Blake, who says he has been a railroad man all his life, was captured in a room on Pine street yesterday afternoon just as he was preparing to begin a job of counterfeiting. United States Marshal Lynch and Deputy Quigley came upon him as he was in the act of melting the metal, and captured a set of plaster of paris molds for silver dollars and other implements. He was held for trial on May 1. The officers say he is probably a member of a gang.

Investigating St. Louis Fatal Fire.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 7.—A large number of witnesses were examined yesterday by Coroner Wait, who commenced the inquiry over the victims of the recent explosion in which seven lives were lost and $100,000 worth of property destroyed. The consensus of opinion was that the explosion was caused by fire, but nobody seems to know how it started. Coroner Wait adjourned the inquiry, to enable the city chemist to examine the cannon crackers found in the wreck.

Oklahoma's Bad for Statehood.

PEBBY, O. T., Jan. 7.—The statehood convention meets at Oklahoma City tomorrow, and will be one of the largest and most interesting ever held in Oklahoma. The Democrats will fight for single statehood, while the Republicans will probably endorse D. DeLoach's recent bill. It looks now as if the Democrats have captured the 4 delegates from Oklahoma for single statehood.

The Demand for the Bonds.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The World says: In response to an inquiry sent out by The World the national bank of the smaller cities and towns of the country, within ten hours, pledged themselves to take over $15,000,000 of government bonds upon a 3 per cent. basis. In addition hundreds of banks declared their desire to subscribe, but were unable to name any particular amount. It cannot be doubted that these banks represent at least another $15,000,000. This means practically the payment of about 117 or 118 for the bonds.

Fatal Explosion of Naphtha.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 7.—Yesterday afternoon there were two explosions of naphtha at the United States and Canada Ice creaming company's works at Montrose and Johnson avenues. There were eleven men at work in the room where the accident occurred. One man was instantly killed and three others, Superintendent Parker and two brothers named Miller, were severely injured. After the first explosion flames burst forth, and at the second crash the roof was blown off and the entire building badly wrecked.

Boiled to Death in Glue.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 7.—George Wetlan, 49 years old, employed at the glue works of Delaney & Co., on Broad street, fell into a vat of boiling glue yesterday, and death resulted. It was with the greatest difficulty that the corpse was removed from the sticky material, where it would soon have been boiled into small fragments. The body then was almost beyond recognition, and it required great care on the part of the men to prevent the corpse from being dismembered through handling.

In the Hands of a Receiver.

TRENTON, Jan. 7.—Vice Chancellor Reed has appointed John Thompson receiver of the Brigantine Transit company, a trolley road from Atlantic City to Brigantine Beach. The liabilities are given at $175,000 and the assets at $300,000. J. Rush Ritter, who was involved in the recent failure of the Solicitors' Loan and Trust company, of Philadelphia, of which he was real estate officer, was president of the Transit company.

A Jealous Husband's Double Crime.

SCOTTSDALE, Ind., Jan. 7.—There was a terrible tragedy yesterday at Little York, eight miles west of here. Walter Combs shot his wife through the bowels, she lying flat on her back. Combs then shot himself below the heart. He is still alive, and begs for some one to kill him. The two children of the couple are absent at school. Mrs. Combs was a highly respected woman and there was no cause save jealousy.

Big Stand by a Clever Forger.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—A forger, who is thought to be a New York expert, has just looted the Nevada bank of $24,000 and fled with the cash, without leaving a clew by which the detectives can track him. He had for some time been doing a brook orange business in The Chronicle building under the name of A. A. Holmes, and deposited at the Nevada bank, where he became well known. On Dec. 11 he presented a check for $24,000 on the Crocker-Woolworth bank, of this city. He took $24,000 in coin and left the balance on deposit. It now transpires that the check was originally for $12, having been "raised" to $24,000.

A CONSPIRACY TO MURDER.

One Man Was to Take Part for Twenty Dollars.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—William J. Weber, formerly paymaster of the Chicago and Northwestern railway in St. Paul, and recently acting secretary and treasurer of the Kilmer Bale Tie company of this city, is, with his brother, Gus Weber, under arrest on a charge of conspiring to commit murder. The intended victim of the Webers was E. V. Hamlin, the secretary and treasurer of the Bale Tie company. Hamlin, it is stated, secured Weber the place in St. Paul, and when his own health gave way from over work, had Weber brought here to fill his own position while he was away on a vacation.

Weber filed Hamlin's position with the Bale Tie company for nine months, and did so well that he was promised the place permanently if Mr. Hamlin did not return. The latter did return, however, and Weber was provided with another position. But this angered him, and in order to again secure Hamlin's place he is charged, proposed to his brother that Hamlin be put out of the way. Gus Weber agreed and was provided with weapons with which to do the work.

Last Thursday night Gus Weber and a man named Richard Maloney, who had agreed to assist in the murder for $30, followed Hamlin as he left his office, intending to murder him at the first opportunity. Their intended victim was with a crowd of his friends, however, and the murder was postponed until Saturday night. At that time Maloney weakened and told a friend, who carried the tale to the police, and the Webers were arrested. Gus promptly confessed.

Foster as minister of finance, and Colonel Tisdale, of South Norfolk, Ont., will take the portfolio held by Dr. Montague. Hon. Peter White, at present speaker of the house of commons, may succeed Hon. John Haggart as minister of railways and canals. Colonel Baker, of Mississippi, has, it is stated, been offered the cabinet position vacated by Hon. W. B. Ives, who was the representative in the ministry of the English speaking minority in the province of Quebec.

All through this section about the same temperature prevailed, and much suffering has been experienced.

FOUR CRUSHED TO DEATH

Another Terrible Accident at the Luke Fidler Mine.

MANGLED BEYOND RECOGNITION.

A "Billy" Weighing a Thousand Pounds Crushed Down on the Men as They Were Being Lowered to Their Work, Instantly Crushing Out Their Lives.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Jan. 7.—While four workmen were being lowered into the shaft of the Luke Fidler mine the "billy" which balances the elevator, and which weighs about 1,000 pounds, fell upon them without warning. They were instantly killed, their bodies being crushed so horribly as to make them unrecognizable. The victims were: James Merritt, aged 25 years, leaves widow and one child; Stephen Merritt, aged 23, leaves widow and one child; Patrick Lynch, aged 33, single; Peter Bolter, aged 23, leaves widow and one child. All resided at Springfield, Pa.

The men were engaged in sinking the new shaft, and were hoisted to the top to eat breakfast. An hour later the two Merritts, Lynch and Bolter stepped into the shaft bucket and were being lowered into the workings, but when the bucket had descended about 300 feet Engineer Brown noticed a jarring of the rope and immediately stopped the machinery. The workmen on top found that the bucket was no longer attached to the wire rope, and they rigged up another bucket and were slowly lowered to the bottom of the shaft, where they found the other bucket splintered and the mangled and bleeding remains of their four ill-fated comrades scattered over the rocky floor.

All of the poor fellows were dead. The shaft bucket in which the four men met their sudden death was guided in its upward and downward journeys by big cross-pieces and arms, known as the "billy," and weighing half a ton. The wire rope passed through this "billy," and it is supposed that ice formed on the rope while the workmen were eating their meal. The bucket passed the ice in safety, but the "billy" was caught by it, and the bucket had descended several hundred feet before the heavy weight caused the ice to give way and allowed the "billy" to fall upon the men who were in the bucket. It is not thought that they were aware of their danger.

The colliery has been idle since Oct. 8, 1894, when the mine was set on fire by a careless workman and six lives were lost, four of the bodies not being recovered for nearly a year. Robert was a brother of one of the victims of the former disaster.

Frigid Weather in New England.

BOSTON, Jan. 7.—The mercury is after the record in this city. Yesterday it fell to 19 degrees below zero, the lowest record made at the signal station since 1836. Neighboring places suffered more severely. At Hyde Park and Beverly Farms it was 14 below, and at Concord, Mass., 12 below. Reports from all over New England show a fall in temperature to between 10 and 15 degrees below zero. Many places in northern New England and the lower provinces report the temperature from 20 to 30 below. In this city hospitals were all busy yesterday attending to cases of frost bite.

FISHING IN WINTER.

A THRIVING AND PICTURESQUE INDUSTRY ON THE GREAT LAKES.

The Hardy Fisherman Chops a Hole In the Ice, Builds a Shanty Over It and Then Spears Trout and Hooks Whitefish and Pike—Dangers of the Sport.

Fishing through the ice is a sport with which every northern bred boy is familiar. On the great lakes it is not pursued as a sport, but as a business. And a very dangerous business, too, it sometimes proves to be.

About this time of year the lake fishermen are out on the ice by the thousands. Almost every big bay on the shores of Michigan's southern peninsula has its little settlement of fishermen who are out there ready to endure all hardships and face all dangers in their pursuit of the ice imprisoned whitefish, pike and trout.

In the summer time the big companies, with their steam tugs and miles of nets, flood the market with fish, and the individual fisherman has no chance to make a living. But in the winter when the steam trawlers are laid up fish are scarce and bring good prices. Then it is that the ice fisherman comes forward and supplies the market.

His preparations are not elaborate, and his whole equipment does not cost more than $15 or $20. In the first place he builds or buys a "shanty." This is commonly a miniature house about 5 feet square and 6 feet in height. It is made of light pine wood and is either lined or covered with tarred paper. It has a "peak" roof, one door and no windows. In the floor is a trapdoor. A low bank that will serve for a seat or bed is built on one side. In one corner is a small sheet iron stove set in a shallow box of sand.

An ax, a lot of fish lines, a spear or two and a bushel or so of coal complete his outfit. When the fisherman is ready to start, he puts his little house on runners and hauls it out on the ice. If the wind is against him this is a hard job, but if it is with him his house slides along easily.

When the fishing ground is reached, he selects a location, chops a hole in the ice and moves his house over it. The runners are removed and the light shelter banked around with snow and ice so that it may not be blown away. Then he is all ready to put down his lines.

The house is necessary for several reasons. Often the fisherman stays out on the ice for weeks at a time, and his shanty is his temporary home. It also provides him with a needed shelter, for the wind that comes in after sweeping over miles of ice and water would be too much for any one but an Eskimo to stand. But with ever so small a fire in the stove his little shanty can be kept as warm as toast.

Another use of the tiny house is to keep out the light. This enables the fisherman to look for some distance down into the clear water. If he intends to spear lake trout, he first puts out a decoy. This is either a live minnow or a small artificial herring, which he keeps bobbing up and down. The passing trout sees it and comes up to investigate. This is a fatal move for the trout, for the fisherman has been sitting, spear in hand, waiting for a fish to appear out of the blue depths. Beneath. When one does, there is a flash of the spear and the water is stained with red. The captured trout is thrown out on the ice, where it quickly freezes as solid as a stick of wood. Then the fisherman reells his pipe and waits for another.

In fishing with hook and line for pike, whitefish and the like minnows and other kinds of bait are used. One man will put down two or three lines attached to some device which warns him when he has a bite. There is not much sport in this kind of fishing, but it is profitable and rather comfortable.

It gives the novice something of an uncanny feeling to sit in one of these darkened little shanties and look down into the still depths. Up through the hole in the ice comes a weird, ghostly sort of light, and you can easily imagine yourself in a cavern at the bottom of the ocean.

Strange noises are heard—muffled moans and groanings, sharp, startling reports and a low booming monotone. The fisherman knows there is nothing supernatural in all this, and he is so accustomed to the sounds that he doesn't notice them. He knows that the groans and the crashes are but the sounds of the constant battle between the ice and the waves far out at the edge of the floe. A battle royal it is, too, but one that is seldom witnessed without danger to the spectator.

The great lakes do not, as many suppose, freeze over their entire surface. The most that the frost king can do in the severest winter is to seize in his icy grip a few miles of the shore's edge. In the great bays he has a better chance and locks them up tightly. The greater portion of these immense fresh water seas, however, are open to the entire winter. The ice extends out from the shore perhaps three or four miles. When it steps, it throws up a rampart on which the waves break.

The war between the two elements goes on all winter. Sometimes, when the cold increases and the wind is stilled, the frost king extends his domain far out into the lake, but with the first high wind the water sends rank after rank of foaming, angry breakers, which quickly destroy the invader's outlying defenses and regain the lost territory. The advantage is followed up, and, although the whitecaps dash themselves in vain against the icy breastworks, the heavy ground swells which succeed them roll under the defenses and split the smooth fields into huge blocks, which in turn are hurled against the new outposts. In this way the lake sometimes regains a mile or more, only to lose it again when deserted by its ally, the wind.

Saginaw bay, in which the state of Delaware would make but a good sized island, is always ice locked in winter, and the straits of Mackinac, which vary in width from 8 to 20 miles, are closed for several months during each year, sometimes from December to April.

Saginaw bay is the most popular fishing ground for the ice fishermen. By the 1st of January the ice is usually two feet thick or more over the entire surface, and as soon as it is safe to do so the fishermen hurry out with their shanties. They generally keep close together, and a village of 800 shanties with from 1,000 to 1,500 inhabitants is no unusual sight.

They are hardy men, these ice fishermen. Their little communities are located often a mile or two and sometimes three miles from the shore. They are tempted farther out by the trout, and their eagerness to get big fish often leads them into danger. As a rule they try to keep inside the danger line, but it is hard to judge just how far in from the ice edge the effects of a storm will be felt.

Every year fishermen are carried out into the lake on small cakes. Sometimes they escape after terrible sufferings, and sometimes they are never heard from again. What tortures of cold and starvation they endured before they finally perished only the men who have been face to face with such a death can imagine.

CARRIED OUT INTO THE LAKE.

In the spring these disasters are more frequent, as the fishermen are loath to abandon their means of livelihood.

Life in an ice fishing village is unique. In the evening the men get together in the various shanties and smoke, drink cheap whiskey and play cards. Music from a dozen accordions, jewsharps and mouth organs usually enlivens the evening air. Outside the wind may whistle and the snow drive in blinding sheets, but inside the shanties there are warmth and a certain amount of comfort if not luxury.

A diversion sometimes occurs when a shanty is blown over. Then if the surface of the ice is smooth and the wind high the unlucky fisherman has a most exciting ride. With a 60 mile an hour gale roaring behind it a shantling shanty will occasionally acquire the speed of a railroad train. If the fisherman happens to be inside when his house is overturned and started off on such a trip, all he can do is to crawl out through the trapdoor and let his temporary home go until it stops or is swept into the lake.

The shanties are usually well anchored when the fishery is good, for the catch is always stored outside, and the big trout, frozen hard and stiff, are piled up like cordwood. When the fisherman gets a pile big enough to make a trip to the shore with, he loads up a big sled and starts off for the nearest market. Sometimes wholesale dealers drive out and buy the trout on the ice.

These ice villages are rather unstable. The Arab band that picks up its tents and "silently steals away" cannot migrate with less effort or on shorter notice than a winter fishing village. If trout are scarce and a prospector has better luck a mile away from the village, inside of an hour the whole settlement will have moved, leaving nothing behind to mark the abandoned site but a few holes in the ice.

ARGUS.
PUBLISHED BY
J. J. ROBINSON, EDITOR.
CITY EDITORS:
A. E. ROBINSON, J. J. ROBINSON, JR., BUSINESS MANAGER.
TUESDAY, JAN. 7, 1896.

When the inmates of county insane asylums were transferred to the State asylums a number of idiots were among those turned over to State care. The Lunacy Commissioners have now decided to turn these idiots back on the counties, for they reason with profound astuteness that insane asylums are places for those who are out of their minds and idiots cannot be out of their minds since they have no minds to be out of. The discharge of idiots from the State hospitals will doubtless enable the Lunacy Commissioners to make an apparent reduction in the cost of maintaining the hospitals, but it will put the counties to much expense and needless trouble and will saddle them with incompetents for whose proper care no adequate provision can be made. The State Board of Charities, aware to the gravity of the situation, has addressed a letter to county superintendents advising them not to accept idiots from State hospitals unless the superintendent of the hospital from which it is proposed to transfer them certifies to their sanity and to the fact that they may safely be cared for in county poor houses.

THE POPULAR LOAN.

The New York World, to-day, publishes telegraphic advices from a large number of country banks, spread over many States, of their determination to subscribe to the popular loan on the terms made by the government. The subscriptions thus made known as made or to be made, aggregate $15,000,000. Behind these there are subscriptions amounting to about $15,000,000 more, to which conditions are attached. These may, or may not, materialize.

It is most probable, inasmuch as none of the subscriptions announced in the World emanate from banks, bank firms or financial institutions in any cities of more than third rate importance, that offers have reached the Treasury of which that paper was not advised at the hour it was printed. The patriotic impulse to stand by the Government which has moved the small banks so widely spread, cannot but have been responsibly in the offices of the great banks in the great cities of the country. The Argus feels that failure of this loan, of the people, by the people, to the people, would be a national humiliation. Than this, far better would it have been to have made such terms with profit seeking syndicates as their greed demanded. Any cost would be better than such failure. But we have faith, utmost faith, in the success of the popular loan. The hours are yet young and a good beginning has been made.

The National Bank, of Port Jervis, has subscribed for $30,000 of the new loan. The National Union Bank, of Monticello, takes $10,000.

Is it "overwork" that has filled the country with nervous dyspepsia? That takes the flesh off their bones and vitality from their blood, makes them feeble, emaciated, inefficient? No. It is bad cooking, overeating of indigestible stuff, other health-destroying habits. The remedy is an artificially digested food such as the Shaker Diet Cordial. Instead of irritating the already inflamed stomach the Cordial gives it a chance to rest, nourishing the system itself and restoring other food taken with it. Fresh and strength return. Is not this idea rational? The cordial is palatable and relieves immediately. No money risked to decide on its value. A ten cent trial bottle does it.

LANOL is the best medicine for children. Doctors recommend it in place of Castor Oil.

Does it Pay to be Sick?

Besides the discomfort and suffering, illness of any sort is expensive. Hundreds of people consult the doctors every day about coughs and colds. This is better than to suffer the disease to run along, but those who use Otto's Cure for the throat and lungs do better still. It costs less and the cure is certain. You can get a trial bottle free of our agents, J. J. Chambers, 27 North St. near Post Office.

If suffering with piles, it will interest you to know that DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve will cure them. This medicine is a specific for all complaints of this character, and its instructions (which are simple) are carried out, a cure will result. We have tested this in numerous cases, and always with like results. It never fails. W. D. Ooley.

HAVANA NOT CAPTURED.

Perfect Tranquillity in the City, Which Is in No Danger. BY UNITED PRESS. HAVANA, Jan. 7.—The reports circulated in the United States by the Chicago Associated Press that Havana had been captured are absurd as they are untrue. There is perfect tranquillity throughout the city, which is not, nor has it at any time been, in the slightest danger of falling. The railway between Havana and Batabano has been restored.

OVER $3,000,000 IN GOLD WITHDRAWN.

BY UNITED PRESS. NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The withdrawal of gold from the Sub Treasury, to-day, amounted to $3,335,000.

McGOUGH'S CONFESSION ENTIRELY VOLUNTARY.

BY UNITED PRESS. DANMORA, Jan. 7.—McGough declares that he was not induced to swear to his confession that he killed Robert Ross. The confession was entirely voluntary.

AN EXCELLENT COMPANY.

The Kennedy Players Begin a Week's Engagement at the Casino.

There was a good sized audience at the Casino, last night, notwithstanding the severe cold wave, to witness the initial performance of Kennedy's Players, who began a week's engagement at this theatre. "The Phoenix" was played, and it was well played, the company being by far the best repertoire troupe that has visited this city. John Kennedy, George Barbler, Emma De Castro, Carrie Thatcher and others in the cast were all that could be desired. The theatre was perfumed with white rose, which proved very pleasing. Souvenirs were given away on which was printed the repertoire of the week.

To-night "The Plunger" will be played, and on to-morrow night the our-act musical comedy, "Two Thieves," will be put on. Manager Corey should have a packed house each night, as the show is an excellent one.

Fishing Through the Ice.

Messrs. Jas. H. Gale, John Wilkin, D. W. Dusenberry and Jacob Totten are fishing to-day at Ketchikan's pond, Mount Hope.

NO MISTAKES.

He Was a Careful Man and Wanted to Be Sure About It.

"You don't remember me, I suppose," he queried as he entered an office in the Moffat building in response to a "Come in" from the occupant. "No, I can't say I do," was the reply. "Last winter when I was here," continued the caller, "you had a sign of, 'Enter the door on your door.' I didn't see it as I went out, and so left the door open, and you called me back and asked if I was born in a sawmill. I told you I was, sir, I was born in a sawmill in this state, and for the first 14 years of my life I lived in a house without doors or windows."

"Well, what do you want?" asked the man at the desk. "I want to know if you are going to hang up that same sign again this winter?" "I probably shall, but what has that to do with you?"

"A good deal, I shall come through this building about once a week this winter to ask for small loans, and I don't want to make no mistakes. If you would your door shut, I'll shut it, but if you'd rather have it left open I'll do that. I'm no maverick. When the sign says, 'Enter the door,' then I shut. When it says, 'Leave the door open,' then I leave it open. I'm in the business to understand that your sign will read, 'Enter the door.'"

"I presume it will."

"Then I'll put you down on the list of 'Shuts' and leave it in mind. At the same time I wish you'd remember me. I was born in a sawmill, and if I happen to leave your door open you won't be to ask for your question again. All is now satisfactory. I'll remember you—you remember me. Couldn't favor me with a small loan to-day, eh?"

"No, sir."

"Probably not. I scarcely expected it. I'm devoted to the day to count to a fair understanding with my patrons and separating the 'Shuts' from the 'Opens.' I'll call another day for the loan. Goodby!"—Detroit Free Press.

"Come, be brave now! Don't disgrace your bloomers."

It was the tall, masculine woman who spoke. Her younger companion held her protector's arm nervously and shook visibly.

"Oh, but," she said, "it is so dreadful, and it is coming this way."

Just then the monster came with a rust, and a swift and hypnotic glitter of its beaklike little eyes. It dodged right between the feet of the new woman and vanished through a little hole in the wall, while the cat which had crouched it sprang after, but brought up with a clump against the wall, unable to follow farther.

There were two shrieks, a wild clenching of bloomers, a leap toward the table and then a fall. The younger woman had fainted. Nature had again asserted herself. The new woman was unharmed.—Buffalo Express.

Injured Innocence.

"Bobby," said the teacher in a Boston school, "I am surprised at you. You are usually so studious, and here you are drawing horrid, idle pictures on your slate."

"I beg your pardon, miss," replied the youth, with the hauteur of misunderrstood genius, "but you are laboring under a misapprehension. This is not a horrid, idle picture. It is a design for a magazine poster."—Washington Star.

Much the Same.

"Men and women are not so far different," says the Cumminsville sage. "While it is true that women, by virtue of centuries of education, will stay away from a fight, where a man would rush in to see, yet she can't be held back from a wedding, which amounts perhaps to much the same."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Juvenile Slanderer.

Teacher—What can you say of the position of women during the middle ages? Precocious Boy—Nothing, ma'am. There ain't any women of the middle ages.—Chicago Tribune.

Not an Impressionist.

Connoisseur—You have painted that picture in the Impressionist style, I see. Artist—No. You have been leaning against it.—New York Weekly.
